Because of Winn-Dixie Scrapbook Activity Students analyze the main characters of the story by creating online albums where they identify character traits and use textual evidence to support their ideas. Decalogue of a character The writer writes for nu nu rep ogolacu na aerc iop erottics of .jel/fui rep etnatriompi id asclouq u/jalanrep ezednerc icid id atsil anu/ elanosrep oglacod nu atlov character will invent and imagine. The final product of this assignment is a story in which their character reveals his decalogue to another character through dialogue. This lesson focuses on voice and organization. Characters due to Winn-Dixie: by creating lists of 10 working as a class, the students correspond to the elements of the list of ten things describing Opal's mother in the novel with the basic elements of the characterization. Subsequently, they work in small groups to go through the same process with the list of ten things that describe Winn-Dixie. Students then create an individual list that describes another character in the book. Finally, the students extend this process to another book that are reading by recording ten characteristics on a printable bookmark, classifying those characteristics in terms of importance and therefore publishing them in a format of flip books. Creation of literary texts: find houses for pet students discusses their experiences regarding the adoption of animals. So they see a 5-minute video segment on a photographer who photographs dogs in an animal refuge to help find houses for them. Finally, they write and share an illustrated book to express that they learned and to convince readers to adopt the animal.
